HONOLULUANS FAINT ON HALEAKALA TRIP

Lost In Fog With No Water. Party Suffers Privations

The negligence of a guide who should have known better and a fog which caused the self-same guide to lose the way somewhat and at least delayed things many hours, made the pleasure trip of a party of 25 Honolulu people to Haleakala Thursday night an experience of considerable hardship. The members of the party were in the saddle for from 12 to 14 hours in the cold, and were without water for an unmerciful period, eating one meal without drink of any kind. Dr. Murray fainted, and a number of ladies were on the verge of the same misfortune.

Those of the Pounene excursionists who had remained over for the Mauna Kea were guests at a luau Thursday evening. About 25 persons, 19 of whom were ladies, were formed into a party for the purpose of going to the top of the mountain. They took autos to the Cornwell ranch, and went to the Awana store in the same way. About 12:30 a. m. the entire party took to horseback, and started up the mountain. They had three guides, through the courtesy of Mr. Baldwin.

One of the guides in the crowd, from the Cornwell ranch, a man who had ascended the mountain two dozen times, who took the Longworths and Secretary Garfield up, but for all this, the way was not a little in the ascent, not, however, amounting to anything serious. The summit was reached about dawn, and all had a very magnificent view, and a breakfast which would have been the best ever if the guides had not forgotten the water, and for this reason there was not even anything with which to make coffee.

The plan was to go down the mountain on the other side from that up which the party had climbed, and by way of Polipoli Springs to reach the Ulupahala ranch, where Dr. Raymond was to entertain the party at a luau.

The guide from the Cornwell place lost his way in the fog. And he was delayed by the slower ones in the party, who had to have him halt continually, that they might catch up. So time was consumed, and the riders straggled into the Raymond place at from 1 o'clock to 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Before reaching Polipoli Springs, and while still in high altitude, Dr. Murray, one of the crowd, fainted away, and was only revived at the springs, so that he was able to go on. Several ladies in the party were near fainting also, and all of this created delay.

The trip is said by those in the crowd to be a very hard one, and such a jaunt as only strong persons and experienced riders should take, as the altitude, exposure, and fatigue are not easy to stand.

DEMOCRATS OUT TO STUMP ALL MAUI

McCandless, Ingham Aid
Lowe Journey On Vailey Isle

L. L. McCandless, Ed. Ingham, and J. K. Lowe set out yesterday to stump all of Maui. They will be absent for two weeks on the Vailey Isle, intending to cover every precinct in their visit.

The three will be met at the steamer by an automobile, and will make the trip in this way, except in the rougher districts, where they will have to take horses.

Twenty precincts must be visited, fifteen of which are organized and five of which are not. It is the purpose of this trip to organize those which are not, as well as to start the ball rolling in those which are already organized.

Evan Swain, who died at Upper Alton, Ill., the other day, aged 89, consumed a 10-cent plug of chewing tobacco every day, thinking it prolonged his life. When he became ill a month ago he increased the supply. Physicians said he died of old age.

McFADDEN GOES IN FOR HARD BOXING

As the time for their match is drawing nearer, both Jack McFadden and Charlie Reilly are working harder. Jack has now gone in for hard boxing and may be seen daily at the Hotel Bath between 3 and 4 p. m., working out with his partners. Reilly sticks to the boat-house, under the wing of Pete Baron, and is doing the regular training stunts right along now.

Though McFadden has proclaimed that he is in fine fix, and will not have very much hard work to do, he is not omitting to box some, as he evidently thinks that he has no snap in the coming go.

Jack is the tentative favorite, but Reilly is new to the sports here, and McFadden's past successes have brought people to look on him as the invincible wonder. No doubt Jack is a good one, but so is Reilly, and it is by no means certain that the wise ones will have everything doped out as it will go.

It has been discovered that the condition of Sheldon, the man injured by an explosion at Kaneohe yesterday, is serious, and he is not expected to live. A coroner's inquest will be held in case he does not survive.
